Description

1. From the push-up position, the body is pushed up. The knees are attracted to the chest. 2. The knees and hips are stretched again. 3. From the push-up position, the stretched body is moved backward. This increases the arm-hull angle. The arms stay as stretched as possible. 4. The body is moved forward again.

Advice

Keep your legs closed during the exercise! Avoid a "hollow back" when stretching the body! The practice becomes more intense the further you remove your body from the suspension point.
